

Canada in a Changing Climate: National Issues Report

CLIMATE DISCLOSURE, LITIGATION AND FINANCE

This chapter examines how companies, the financial community and governments are increasingly considering, financing, and disclosing climate-related risks to their practices and operations.

Climate change risks and opportunities are business issues

Climate-related disclosure drives climate action

Transitioning to a climate-resilient and low-carbon economy requires significant investments

Investments in climate risk reduction build resilience

Climate litigation is increasing against governments in Canada

Climate litigation against the private sector is a potential risk
